

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A reception apparatus having its reception operation controlled based on initially recorded reserved information comprises an input section 5 configured to receive reservation information as an input, a recording section configured to record the reservation information inputted by the input section, a deciding section configured to decide whether or not any of those reserved information recorded on the 10 recording section conflicts with the reservation information inputted at the input section, and a display section configured to display a result of decision by the deciding section.